

Avon Wildlife Trust

Make a difference for wildlife!

The State of Nature report, launched by Sir David Attenborough, showed that wildlife is in trouble with 60% of the species studied in decline. It is not too late to take action for wildlife. Here are ten ways you can help make a difference.

1 Volunteer your support

Opportunities include surveying wildlife, scrub-bashing, growing food at Feed Bristol and Feed Folly, and helping at events and in the office.

2 Join as a member

A strong membership means we can generate funds for conservation and education projects and it gives us a stronger voice and greater influence.

3 Make space in your garden

Build a wildlife pond, grow pollinator-friendly plants, and make gaps in garden fences for hedgehogs.

4 Support wildlife campaigns

Add your name to petitions, supporting Marine Conservation Zones, and fighting the badger cull and planning applications that threaten wildlife.

5 Get children into nature

Enjoying nature is key to protecting wildlife for the future. Come to our Trust events, from owl prowls to storytelling, explore our reserves and discover wild places.

6 Book 'Wild Schools'

Tell your local school about our courses at Folly Farm Centre, educational opportunities at Feed Bristol, and our FREE Wild Schools Film Challenge.

7 Challenge your MP

Ask politicians what they are doing to protect wildlife in their gardens, in their communities and in Parliament, and ask them to stand up for nature.

8 Use your spending power

Buy goods that are sustainably sourced, and support us by taking out a Triodos account, holding a conference, meeting, private event or wedding at Folly Farm Centre, or using AWT Ecological Consultancy.

9 Become a wildlife champion

Speak up for wildlife, enthuse people about its importance and invite them to explore our nature reserves, support our campaigns, and follow us on Twitter and Facebook. Sign up for our newsletter!
